O1 Communications Re-Enters Retail Market with Cloud Business Phone System

EL DORADO HILLS, Calif., Sept. 3, 2015 – O1 Communications, Inc., a leading California VoIP telecommunications company, announced today its re-entry into the enterprise market and the launch of its cloud-based, hosted PBX and unified communications (UC) offering, O1 Phone VoiceStream. O1 has focused exclusively on its wholesale and carrier business for the past five years, after selling its retail division to Sacramento-based TelePacific Communications in 2010.

“We are excited to be back in the retail market and are committed to providing Sacramento-area businesses a market advantage with VoiceStream’s cost-effective, customizable UC solution for business phones,” said Max Seely, senior vice president. “We’ve received feedback from both local businesses and former customers expressing the need for an alternative to the region’s current hosted providers, so the response to our return has been very positive.”

VoiceStream’s cloud infrastructure decreases the associated capital, lease, and maintenance costs of a premises-based telephone system and keeps pace with the latest technology. Designed for any size business, VoiceStream offers a full unified communications experience that enhances productivity for an increasingly mobilized workforce by making voice, video, business directories, call logs, instant messaging and presence available on a single application. Additionally, the product leverages an intuitive, self-service web portal to guarantee O1 customers a superior user experience and to simplify management and delivery of the VoiceStream product.

“We are committed to streamlining business communications, improving profit margins, and boosting overall operational efficiency,” Seely said “With VoiceStream, businesses gain a cutting-edge, flexible cloud communications system they can manage themselves, while also gaining the security of working with a local, experienced company, like O1, dedicated to their communications success.”
